

I believe that some kind of Morse requirement would help to insure that Amateur Radio not be taken lightly as a "fly by night" hobby. The harder one works (to a point) to acquire something, the more he or she values it.